Father and daughter have been playing together from the time Rebeca was not even three years old, and the interaction and vibrancy in their playing is infectious. They have shared a love of music which has led them to many opportunities to play together. Rebeca's was featured on the violin in a school concert playing the very intricate Gypsy-styled "Monti's Czardas." The Czardas is a Hungarian national dance, which starts out slow and becomes a whirling blaze.

Each member of the triple-generational ensemble has various musical influences that they bring to the group. The listener will feel like they've been on a trip in a Gypsy wagon, or maybe even a time machine, through Eastern Europe, Italy, Ireland, England, & America — hearing folk tunes, along with classics of Bach, Pachelbel, and Mozart, to the modern pop songs of the not-so-long-ago past.

Rebeca Pacas (Violin, Mandolin), …. Graphic artist, beautiful, vibrant, fiery violinist - watch her smoke (on her violin that is).

Dennis Pacas (Guitar) …… genius of things electronic, patient, grounded, is the guy to go to when you can't figure out how to work your computer.

Lisa (Vocals, Guitar), has enjoyed a life full of music as a vocalist, a multi-instrumentalist, composer, conductor, and teacher.

Dr. Brian Tiep (Violin, Mandolin), had a choice to make when it came to deciding his profession— between music and medicine. He chose to practice medicine as his profession and enjoy music as a hobby, because, as he says, if he did it the other way around, he would be arrested.
